

ecoCampLondon event goes Carbon Neutral

Inline with the ethos and discussions taking place on the day, ecoCampLondon will be a carbon neutral event. This distinct event, sponsored by UnLtd.org.uk, a company that supports social entrepreneurs, will be certified carbon neutral by BlueGreen Carbon Offsetting.

ecoCampLondon is a BarCamp about the environment and sustainability.

Unlike conventional conferences, BarCamps employ a highly democratic and user-generated meeting methodology, where the participants' level of engagement and sense of ownership make all the difference.

The inspiring principle of ecoCampLondon is that the discussion is an unguarded forum for people to put forward their ideas, projects and discussion points.

At ecoCampLondon participants have the opportunity to propose a topic, pick a slot on the timetable and facilitate discussion among people that have decided to have their say on that topic. If you are not learning from or contributing to the discussion, you just use your feet and walk away to some other session.

Attendees are encouraged to utilize public transport wherever possible. Considering the topics open for discussion, it's a natural step to offset the residual carbon emissions the event will generate.

Free tickets for this and future events are available at <http://ecocamp.eventbrite.com>
